Projects

Portable Solar powered inverter

6/2018 - 10/2018

It was a science project which was basically made for the future of power source in Nigeria, converting from non-renewable energy (Crude-Oil) to renewable energy (Sun). The project was made by me during my final year as a prototype. since the world is switching to the portable age where things as to be convenient enough for man that's when my idea grew from. Normally we are all used to the big inverters which takes about two truck batteries to power and it been moved will take a big means to transport it from one place to another but with my prototype its stress-free and portable to carry imagine having the more power energy than the normal truck powered inverter but the size of a lady's office bag and the weight of a little car battery. the portable solar inverter can generate about 1500watts of power when made as a prototype meaning it can carry s light bulb, a television, you can charge your phone and a mini-fridge for at least 2weeks non-stop. I believe if the project is well financed it can help a long way in power generation in the world today
